THE EXHIBITION.

The Powers Claimed by the Centennial Commission.

HOW ONE HEAD BUTTED THE OTHER

Opinions of George W. Biddle, Judge Porter and Judge Shellabarger.

PHILADELPHIA. June 24, 1876. The claim that there never was any dispute between the Centennial Commission and the Board of Finance has been already refuted by the publication of opinions by Charles O'Conor and other counsel, rendered at the request of the latter body. The great question was in respect to the appointment of police for the Centen-pial grounds and the control of the grounds during the the time of the Exhibition. It will be recoilected that eminent lawyers to whom the Board of Finance appealed declared that under the acts of Congress the Centennial Commission was merely "a supervisory body," not having the right to expend a dollar or to appoint a man. It was simply intended to supervise and see that the celebration was conducted for the honor and dignity of the nation. They were to be some-Mr. Sexton Brown at the fashionable wooding, or Mr. Turveydrop in the attitude of blessing his children, whom he found it useless to curse. But the Commissioners were unwilling to be nothing more than illustrations of the verse. "Superfluous lag the veterans on the stage," and determined to fight the devil with his own weapons—that is (assuring the Bar that I speak in a purely Pickwickian sense), they opposed lawyer to lawyer. They also have obta pinions as to the powers of the Centennial Comwhich entirely contradict the opinions of the adverse faction. They oppose the au-thority of George W. Biddie, of Philadelphia; John K. Porter, of New York, and Hon. Samuel Shellabarger, of Washington, to that of Messra. O'Coner, Browning and Hirst. The latter documents have been published, but the opinions supporting the claim of the Commission to supreme authority are now given to the public, through the columns of the OPINION OF GEORGE W. BIDDLE.

The longest and most elaborate opinion is that of Mr.

George W. Biddle, contained in a letter to General Hawley. President of the United States Centennial Commis non, dated March 31. He points out that the act of Congress, March 3, 1871, in its eighth section provided "that whenever the President should be in formed by the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania of provision having been made among other things, for the exclusive control of th commission of he proposed Exhibition," the President should make proclamation of the same. It is upon the phrase 'exclusive control," it will be seen, that Mr. Biddle's argument is principally based. He then refers to the act of Congress June 1, 1872, creating the Board of Finance, the seventh section of which provides that no grant conferring rights or privileges of any description ("kind" is the right word here, but Congressment always use the largest words they can), relative to th Exhibition shall be made without the consent of the Centennial Commission, and that the Commission shall have power to control, change or revoke all such grants. Then he asserts and cites acts of the Legislature to prove that the State of Pennsylvania has always admitted that the Exhibition is legally under the exclusive control of the commission, and argues that the State has directly conferred upon the commission the tontrol and direction of all the buildings which the State has erected. He ends his letter with the follow-

lag summary:—

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the State of Pennsylvania has, by the action of her Chief Executive, by repeated public recognition of his official acts, as well as by direct legislation, conferred the control of the Exhibition and of the buildings, structures and enclosures required and used for the Exhibition during the time publicly announced as that of its duration, upon the corporation known as the United States Centennial Commission, and that this commission therefore has, during this time, power to "police" the inclosure actually used for the Exhibition.

If, however, I understand one of the questions put by you to me to be as to which of the two corporations—viz., the United States Centennial Commission or the Centennial Board of Finance has, as believed each other, the power of appointing the police I do not think the question admits of discussion, as both of these corporations are created by the Congress of the United States, and the exclusive control of the Exhibition, in all such matters as the one in question, is given in express language to the former, the United States Centennial Commission."

tion, is given in express language to the former, the United States Centennial Commission."

THE BOARD OF FIXANCE SCHORDINATE.

After having written this letter Mr. Biddle seems to have read the opinions of Mossrs. O'Conor, Browning and Hirst, and in a posiscript, dated the 3d of May, makes this answer:—"All the authority of the Board of Finance," he positively says, "including that of its officers and agents, is under the control of the commission, and no language in toe act creating the Board of Finance gives the latter, either directly or by necessary implication, any such powers (those of police appointment, control of the grounds and buildings, &c.). The powers given to the Board are to acquire and to dispose of property to carry into effect the provisions of the act creating the Centennial Commissioners, and to propare grounds and erect buildings in accordance with plans adopted by the commission. It is in reality a financial commission created to parry into effect the paramount views of the Centennial Commission, which is by the same act made a corporation." He thinks that the Board of Finance is bound to pay all the expenses incurred by the commission in activities out the act of March. 3 1871. to pay all the expenses incurred by the commission is carrying out the objects of the act of March 3, 1871 and sums up this branch of the subject in the follow to pay all the expenses incurred by the commission in carrying out the objects of the act of March 3, 1871, and sums up this branch of the subject in the following able manner:—

But even were it admitted that the Board of Finance is not bound to pay persons appointed to preserve order in the grounds by the Centennial Commission—in other words, a police force—the power of refusal to appropriate money claimed by the Board of Finance could in owner is one than an original power of appointment. Fower is one than an original power of appointment. Fower is one than an original power of appointment. Fower is one than an original power of appointment. Fower is one than an original power of appointment. Fower is one than an original power of appointment. Fower is one than a program of the property of the public service is vested in the President or Governors of the serval States, nous of whom, however have any pecuniary means of enforcing payment of the salaries of such officers. And other instances readily suggest themselves. While section 11 of the act of 1872, just quoted, gives the commission power to enter into such onligations as may be promotive of the pur, o.es for which it was enablished, it might be what it could not raise money for the purpose just indicated. It can, however, control the grounds through agents appointed by it, and it can prevent intesterence by the Board of Finance with this control. Of course it is to be desired that the Board of Finance with this control. Of course it is to be desired of Finance with this control. Of course it is to be desired of Finance with this control. Of course it is to be desired that the Board of Finance with the Roard of Finance with the sound of Finance with the sound of Finance of Finance with the Financial means the long to the Centennial Commission; but its refusal to do so does not limit or affect the power of the commission, nor make any prant, except subject to the control of Finance in the interest of care of the commission in the financial means the care o maintaining however, their control over-the whole subject.

WHAT JUDGE PORTER NATE.

Judge Porter's opinion, also addressed to General Hawiey, is brief, and its most important point, independently of its entire agreement with Mr. Bedde, is that the commission cannot be bound by any action of its own executive committee, acting in the intervals between the sessions, because it cannot abdicate the powers with which it was entrusted by law. Judge Porter saws:—

Centennial Board of Finance, is explicit and decisive on the questions at issue between the two corporations. In regard to the matters embraced in its provisions, the powers of the Board are subordinate to the parameters, the powers of the Board are subordinate to the parameters authority of the Commission. All grants conferring rights or privileges of any description connected with the grounds or buildings, relating to the Exhibition or celebration, whether made gith or without the approval of the Exercitive Committee, resubject to the supervisory authority of the Centennial Commission, which has full power to revike, outrol or thangs such grants, to appoint all judges and examiners and to award all premiums. In view of the general powers assess in the tentennial Commission, this that the tentennial Commission, it is overen that the in the Centennial Commission, it is obvious that the fewelves on that hody of providing adequate means of islaining order on the Exhibition grounds, protecting the rty interests committed to its charge, and designating to whom the execution of these duties should be com-d. The views expressed on these subjects in the opin. Mr. Biddle are, in my judgment correct and conclu-tary are in harmony with the legislation of Congress, rrom which both corporations derive their authority, and which has clearly defined their relative duties and powers. JUDGE SHELLARARGES VIEWS.

Mr. Shellebargor, having read Mr. Biddle's letter, says that he concurs in the opinion, and consinues:—

As to all matters affecting the rights, privileges or interests of exhibitors or the puolic, or relating to the Exhibition or celebration, the authority of the Commission is supreme, exclusive and final, and is in law of a character which cannot be so delegated, in virtue of a bylaw or otherwise, to an executive committee, so that the Bloard of Commissioners cannot change or disaffirm or abolish what the Executive Committee may have done in vacation. I need not here state the grounds of this opinion further than to say that it is based on the explicit provisions of the statue and settled principles of law as to delegation of corporate power and trusts.

say that it is based on the explicit provisions of the statute and settled principles of law as to delegation of corporate power and trusts.

Who shall decide when lawyers disagree? After reading these opinions and comparing them with those given to the Board of Finance, you will see the dangerous point to which this dispute (one must not call it a quarrel here) brought the Exhibition. It came near to that open contest which Judge Porter deplored in his letter, for the lawyers could decide nothing, and the courts alone could determine. So there has been a compromise between the two heads of the celebration, as you have been informed, and even if they are at loggerheads, that is considered better than to have a national scandat. But all that has been said of the evil and injury to the Exhibition caused by this divided authority is justified by the opinions which are now for the first time published. Why they were not printed before it is hard to say, except on the theory that the two high contending powers had taken a lesson from the poincy of Plymouth church and would gladly have kept out of the newspapers when they decided to keep out of the courts. But the Centennial Commissioners and the Board of Enance have not the right to make public matters secret from the public, and in the end they must open their books, explain their differences and let the people know how much money they are spending, what they are spending it for, in what manner their appointments are made, and which of the two heads is really the master of the other.

MATHEW NOBLE, SCULPTOR. The telegraph announces the death of Mathew Noble, in the year 1820, and studied under the late Mr. Francis. Although very successful in his professional career, he has left behind him no works of a very high order. His talent at best never passed beyond respect-Noble obtained the order for the Manchester Welling ton Monument while yet a young and unknown man. rejected on frivolous excuses. After this award sculp-tors like Foley, Belines and MacDowell discouraged the idea of competing for public statues, as it was made clear that ignorance or favoritism rendered this sysidea of competing for public statues, as it was made clear that ignorance or favoritism rendered this system of selection wholly unreliable as tests of the value of designs submitted to committees in many instances wholly gnorant of art comes and not possessing even elementary art culture. Mr. Noble's monument proved much better than it was expected to be, and without rising to any height in art it satisfied the public. From this moment Mr. Noble's popularity was established, and up to the time of his death he continued to receive public commissions of importance. The Manchester Wellington Monument consisted of a colossal statue in bronze of the fron Duke, surmounting a granite pedestal. On the angles were placed heroic figures, representing Wissom, Valor, Victory and Peace. This work was inaugurated in 1836. It cost about $35,000 in gold. He also executed a statue of the Duke of Wellington for the East India Company, which was placed in their court room in Leadenhall street. A statue by the same artist of Dr. Isaac Barrow has been set up in the chapel of Trinity College, Cambridge, and in the church of Ashley, Staffordshire, he has raised a monument to the late Mr. Thomas Kynnersiey, typitying Life, Death and Resurrection. His best known ideal work is a statue of "Purity," which was engraved for the Art Union. It is very sweet and tender in expression, and will probably do more than any other of his works to recommend the artist favorably to posterity. Mr. Noble was a man of amiable manners, and generally esteemed by his brother artists.

On the day named Admiral Benie was seized with a fit of apoplexy and died the same evening. Next day the flags of all the shipping in the harbor were put half mast, as well as the lort flag and the flags of the private residences. The Minerve fired hour guns all day and her yards were crossed; so, also, were the yards of the German corvette Victoria. The funeral took place on Sunday morning. As the corpse funeral took place on Sunday morning. As the corpse left the ship the Minerve fired seventeen guns, the Victoria fired seventeen guns and lastly the forta similar number. The corpse was received at the wharf by the French Coasal, the Governor and all the Danish officials, a guard of French marines from the Minerve, and a squad of Danish soldiers.

A large procession was formed which proceeded to the Catholic church and from thence to the grave, where a sainte was fired both by the French marines and the Danish soldiers. The funeral services were conducted by the Archbishop of Baracas, Venezuen, who had come to St. Thomas for the purpose of telegraphing a report to the Pope. The Minerve proceeds to Philadelphia where a new admirat wid join her.

BEECHER'S BIRTHDAY.

Yesterday the sixty-third birthday of Mr. Beecher was celebrated by the Plymouth choir and the teachers of the Bethel and Mayflower Missions by a picnic at Sea Cliff, on the Sound. Mr. Beecher was absent, owing to indisposition, his physician baving forbidden him to leave home. Among those present were Rev. Edward Beecher, of Emora, accompanied by two ladies; Assistant Pastor Halliday; choir leader Campand taminy; Charles E. Morton, missionary in charge of the Bethel; Professor Raymond, Rossiter W. Raymond, Jr., C. E. Burdick, George Huison and dughter, B. F. Blar and family, S. V. White, Mr. Skerry, wife and daughter; Mr. Lloyd, George Crane and wife, Ely Gli and wife, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Edgerton, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Hudson, of Washington; Chas Duxbury and wife, L. Bennett, and E. R. Sackett. After enjoying a pleasant day the party returned in time to attend the strawberry featival at the Bethel.

ASSEMBLAGE OF AGED MASONS.

Harmony Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. The ceremonies were conducted under the auspices of that lodge. A large number of very aged Masons from different parts of the State were present, the oldest individual being Mr. Salas Ford, of Westville, near New Haven, who is in his ninety-first year, and who has belonged to the frateruity more than half a century. Grand Master W. W. Lee presided.

The aiddress of welcome was delivered by Past Master Henry Tolles, of Harmony Lodge, and Rev. A. N. Lewis, chaplain of the Second regiment, C.N.G., recited an original poem. Among the distinguished Masons and heavy men who took part in the ceremonies were Mr. Isane Brown, of Grace church, New York, and Mr. Charles W. Bradley, New Haven, President of the Connecticut Fat Man's Association. After the closing of the lodge in "due and ancient form" dinner was served. When the cotth had been removed speeches abounding in reminiscences very pleasant for the veterans to contemplate were made.

MARITIME MISCELLANY.

STRAMER ORIENTAL—The wreck of this steamer remains ashore on Harding's Ledge, and the wreckers will probably, and it is for their interest, let an easterly well from the ocean break up the hull instead of adopting the more expensive method of explosion by powder. An easterly gelle would knock her to pieces in a short time. About all the cargo has been recovered and brought up to the city.

BRIG JANES DAYIS (of Stockton), Ellis, from Hampden for New York, with ice, went ashore in the fog 18th inst near Duck Trap Lincolnville, where she became a total loss, except the sails and rigging, which have been saved. The J D recistered 167 tons, was built in 1855 at Stockton, where she was owned, principally by the captain, Z B Edis; she was partially insured; in insurance on cargo.

BRIG SPRINGBIRD (Br), Hassell, from New York for Ridanoiro, which put into St Thomas to refit, has been changed into a schooner and chartered to take provisions to Jacmel.

BRIG JULIA BLAKE (Br), from Rio Janeiro for New York, which put into St Thomas dismasted, had discharged her cargo. Schi hist and would go upon the railway to repair and take forward her cargo.

SCHE M A HEYER, from Jamaica for New York, which put into Charleston June 16 leaking, has been placed in Marsh's floating dry dock for repairs.

YACHY W JOHNON, formerly pilot boat No 4, of Beaufort, while lying at an anchor off the point at Sullivan's floating the boar Charleston, night of 21st, parted her cable at 10% o'clock, and drifting on an ebb tide, struck Drunken Dick Shoul and partially filled. Upon the return of the flood she was relieved from the shoul and had forecall and ibs yet, she proved unmanageable, however and capasied 320 yards west of the long grillars., and quickly sunk in about six fathoms of water. The crew convesiend of the mate, J W Johnston, and three colore bands. At the time of her going over two of the hands were lost. The yacht was of 41 tous and was valued at $1,560.
